COURSE: MEDIA LAW & ETHICS [This resource won the Excellence in Teaching Broadcasting Award from the BJTC]
MC53046A (ALL THIRD YEAR UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS [JOINTS & SINGLES PROGRAMMES] AND VISITING INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS)
MC71058A (MA PRACTICE JOURNALISM STUDENTS STUDYING ON RADIO, TELEVISION JOURNALISM, & JOURNALISM MA PROGRAMMES & MA DIGITAL JOURNALISM)
MC71058B MA THEORY PROGRAMMES (MA THEORY STUDENTS STUDYING ON MEDIA COMMUNICATIONS, TRANSNATIONAL, POLITICAL COMMUNICATIONS, SCREEN STUDIES ETC MA PROGRAMMES) AT 30 CATS AND 15 CATS

Welcome to everyone studying Media law & Ethics this academic year 2011-2012. What an exciting time to be studying the subject? It cannot be said that this area of study is not dynamic and changing day by day. We have 'Hackgate' 'superinjunctions' and wikileaks, judicial enquiries into media ethics, journalists paying police officers and the police enquiry into News of the World telephone hacking. Journalists and media executives are being arrested day by day in 3 separate police enquiries. The Westminster Parliament is in the process of scrutinizing a new defamation act.

It's marvellous that you have decided to take on the course and we hope you will enjoy it.

The core course book is Comparative Media Law & Ethics (2009) by the course convenor, Tim Crook, published by Routledge. It is available at Blackstones, Goldsmiths, Waterstones, Gower Street, and there are discounts from online sellers such as Amazon and Routledge the publishers. The library has 10 copies.

The Hacks' fight- Phil Hall and Professor Roy Greenslade lock horns.Press Gazette Report

The course investigates the nature of media law and ethical regulation for media practitioners primarily in the UK, but with some comparison with the situation in the USA and references to the experiences of media communicators in other countries. The students are directed towards an analysis of media law as it exists, the ethical debates concerning what the law ought to be, and the historical development of legal and regulatory controls of communication. The theoretical underpinning involves a course of learning the subject of media jurisprudence- the study of the philosophy of media law, and media ethicology- the study of the knowledge of ethics in media communication. The course evaluates media law and regulation in terms of its social and cultural context. It is taught in one and a half hour lectures and two-hour seminars that involve the discussion of multi-media examples of media communication considered legally and/or morally problematical.
